Safety Information

In order to be used in the workplace, footwear must conform to certain standards. Those with protective toecaps must meet EN20345:2004 which means that they should withstand the impact of 20kg falling from a height of 10.2m.

Non metallic (composite) footwear has a number of advantages - it's lightweight, flexible and will not falsely set off security scanners in airports and other secure areas.

What do these industry specifications mean?

- SP1A - toecap / oil resistance / antistatic / heel shock absorption / penetration resistance.
- S3 - toecap / oil resistance / antistatic / heel shock absorption / penetration resistance / water resistant uppers.
- S5 - toecap / oil resistance / antistatic / heel shock absorption / penetration resistance / cleated outsole / waterproof.
